Areas of expertise

A chartered town planner (MRTPI) with over a decade of experience working in the private sector, Ewan has been involved in a range of complex planning and regeneration projects across London and the south-east of England.

Ewan routinely gives commercial planning advice on large-scale, residential-led or mixed-use developments which invariably contain tall building elements.

Key experience

Ewan has been involved in the preparation and submission of numerous large scale, major planning applications and has several years of experience advising on all stages of the planning process from land promotion to post-consent delivery, which has served to expand his knowledge base of the UK planning system.

He is well versed in leading multi-disciplinary consultancy teams throughout the pre-application process, and the preparation and submission of detailed, outline and hybrid planning applications; all supported by a sound and expanding planning and commercial knowledge that is coupled with an awareness of local political factors and legal precedents.

Ewan routinely provides technical advice on a variety of planning issues with a particular interest in the appraisal and identification of prospective development sites.

Ewan has appeared in a supporting role at Planning Appeals and Public Inquiries including two Secretary of State Call-In applications (Wembley Park and B&Q Cricklewood).

He is also experienced advising on Community Infrastructure Levy (CIL) liability and Section 106 negotiation.
